LABOR DAY IS CELEBRATED BY TOILERS IN THIS CITY TODAY

ANNUAL HOLIDAY FOR WORKINGMEN

Parade This Morning Is the Leading Feature of the Day's Exercises

MANY UNIONS IN UNIFORM

Turn-out One of the Most Attractive Witnessed in La Crosse in Many Years

PROBABLE SHOWERS

Weather Observer E. C. Thompson this morning made a forecast to the effect that the conditions are still unsettled and there may be showers tonight and tomorrow. Cool weather will continue.

Today is Labor day, the annual holiday of the toilers, who take this occasion to get together and enjoy a day set aside for that purpose. After the downpour of rain last night the sky cleared early this morning, but later it again clouded over and for time more showers were threatened, but the wind shifted to the northwest and it is expected the remainder of the day will be pleasant. As usual the feature of the day's celebration was the parade, which took place this morning. Nearly every local was represented and it was in every respect one of the most attractive Labor day parades ever witnessed in La Crosse. Some of the unions were uniformed, wearing uniform shirts or neckties, or caps or suits, and this added much to the appearance of the parade.

- TO LABOR
- Keep this name in mind
- when you vote for assemblyman tomorrow:
- J. E. McCONNELL
- He voted to give labor a square deal.

Each year more union men are added to the ranks in this city, and while they do not all turn out in parade, the showing made this morning was an indication of the strength in the combined locals of La Crosse. For the first time in a number of years the committee in charge of the program has decided not to include speeches in the exercises. Many of the leading local orators, who would be willing to give the laboring men a talk upon this occasion, have been busily engaged in the campaign and therefore were unable to appear today. In addition to that the committee has found by experience that immediately after the parade, the toilers have not been inclined to listen to speeches, and for

Three Kinds of Men

Some won't advertise when business is good. They say they don't need it.

Some won't advertise when business is dull; they say they can't afford it.

There are others who advertise all the time.

Those "all the time" advertisers are the ones who prosper. They prosper in dull times.

They increase their business in good times. They're constantly pushing.

They're the ones who leave their half-hearted brothers asleep at the roadside. Investigate, and you will find that these progressive business men advertise in the evening paper because their store news goes to the people when they are ready to read it.

The TRIBUNE goes to thousands of buyers every evening. Does it carry your store news?

NO CHEERS FOR TAFT IN ST. PAUL

Ten Thousand Silent Men at Depot and 20,000 Unionists File Past Grimly

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 5.—The arrival of President Taft in St. Paul today was marked by the lack of demonstration of a crowd of 10,000 people who surrounded the depot exits in Sibley street. The cheering was sporadic and came from groups in the throngs.

President Taft was escorted through the streets which were well lined by practically silent people. The crowd had come to see him, not to cheer him.

From a box President Taft reviewed the Labor Day parade and this event passed off without demonstration. The line of 20,000 union men passed silently and even grimly before the president. Over a dozen unions were not in the parade, having decided several weeks ago not to be reviewed by the president.

Was Auditorium "Packed"

President Taft proceeded from the reviewing stand to the Auditorium where 10,000 delegates and invited guests of the conservation congress were awaiting him. There were few laboring men in the Auditorium as they found most of the seats taken after the parade was ended. It was openly charged by the union leaders that the Auditorium had been packed against the common voters, and contained an audience of business men and their friends who would be friendly to Taft.

President Feels "Frost"

President Taft stepped to the conservation congress platform at 10:30. The demonstration was painfully formal and the president's face was set and unmarked by a smile. The cheering lasted thirty seconds. Several efforts to start a cheer from various parts of the hall fell flat, not lasting more than four seconds.

St. Paul was evidently determined not to give the president a greeting and Taft's serious expression indicated that the slight was deeply felt.

POST TRIES TO HEAD OFF THE SETTLEMENT

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 3.—Charles W. Post, cereal manufacturer of Batle Creek, Mich., who has waged relentless war on union labor for many years, filed suit this afternoon in the federal court here, to enjoin the Bucks Store and Range company and the American Federation of Labor from declaring the former concern a closed shop.

NO VERDICT IN BALLINGER CASE

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 5.—The Ballinger-Pinchot congressional investigating committee met informally today in the West Hotel in Minneapolis and decided nothing official will be done by the committee until Wednesday.

The members of the committee went to St. Paul to meet President Taft and attend the national conservation congress. On Tuesday, a similar pilgrimage to hear Col. Theodore Roosevelt will stand between the committees and its deliberations on the verdict to be rendered in the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy.

SPARTA FARMER IS HURT IN EXPLOSION

SPARTA, Wis., Sept. 5.—Erdinand Ziese, a farmer of this county, was severely injured in a dynamite explosion. He had been blasting rocks at his farm when a charge of dynamite exploded, blowing off one hand, destroying an eye and otherwise injuring him.

BALDWIN AT WILTON

Judge C. L. Baldwin left this morning for Wilton, Wis., where he will be the principal speaker at the Labor Day celebration.

MILWAUKEE WANTS NEW GRAIN RATE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 5.—The Milwaukee chamber of commerce today petitioned the interstate commerce commission to require the establishment of a through rate on grain, with transient privileges from Chicago via Milwaukee to New York and Boston. This would give Milwaukee a chance to handle Chicago grain. As the matter stands a through rate from Milwaukee via Chicago to Boston and New York, enables Chicago dealers to handle both Milwaukee and Chicago grain while Milwaukee is restricted to its own market.

PINCHOT STRIKES AT TAWNEY TONIGHT

ROCHESTER, Minn., Sept. 5.—(Special.)—This evening Gifford Pinchot, one of the closest friends of Theodore Roosevelt, will deliver an address here in the interests of Sidney Anderson of Lanesboro, the progressive candidate for congress in the First Minnesota district, against Congressman James A. Tawney. Mr. Pinchot comes into this district in an effort to convince the voters that Mr. Anderson should be nominated because he stands for the people, and against the special interests. It is expected that Mr. Pinchot will draw a large crowd from all over this section.

STAGG FACES FAMINE OF FOOTBALL COACHES

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Coach A. A. Stagg will demonstrate the natural method of growing football teams when he starts his university of Chicago practice Sept. 20 at Marshall field. The latest word from Idaho Springs, Col., the coach's summer refuge, is that he is depending on fresh and air and plenty of gridiron food to develop his candidates and make up for the absence of the 1909 "grabs" this fall.

ASCENDS 8,151 FEET; IS NEARLY FROZEN

PARIS, Sept. 5.—Leon Morane, broke his own world's record for height aeroplaning when he reached an altitude of 8,151 feet. He was nearly frozen when he alighted and had to be helped from his machine. Jacques de Lesseps, one of the channel crossers, fell from a height of 60 feet while flying. He miraculously escaped injury, but his machine was reduced to scrap.

CAMPAIGN NOW OVER PROGRESSIVES TO WIN LA FOLLETTE A 'CINCH'

IT IS ALL OVER BUT THE SHOUTING

That La Follette will Be Renominated by Overwhelming Majority Is Best Prediction

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 5.—With all active campaigning completed, Saturday and Labor day at hand today, Wisconsin political workers are resting on arms awaiting the results of the state-wide primaries tomorrow.

Although campaign headquarters of the various candidates are quiet today, it is the consensus of opinion from all parts of the state that Robert M. La Follette will be renominated to the United States senate over the candidate of the regulars, Samuel A. Cook, the millionaire paper manufacturer, by an overwhelming majority.

So confident are the supporters of "Fighting Bob" that he will be successful in tomorrow's primaries, that they are now preparing for the campaign which must follow the primaries.

State Senator E. T. Fairchild, stalwart candidate, and Francis E. McGovern of the progressives, candidates for the republican nomination for governor, are first in the choice of the betters, with McGovern the favorite. Various wagers are posted at even money that each will be successful.

At the campaign headquarters of Captain Wm. Mitchell Lewis, candidate on the county option platform, confidence is also expressed today.

Reports today from headquarters of candidates for the congressional districts are that most all candidates are confident and now awaiting the primary results.

CAPTAIN AND 12 PROBABLY LOST

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—A wireless dispatch received here today says Captain Pinkham and 12 of the British steamer West Point, which burned and foundered off the Grand Bank on her trip from Glasgow are missing and probably drowned in the sinking of their life boat.

Sixteen of the crew were rescued by the Leyland Line's Devonian, under command of Captain Trant. The Devonian, according to wireless reports, searched in vain for possible survivors from Capt Pinkham's life boat.

DAKOTA GIRL IS BURIED YESTERDAY

DAKOTA, Minn., Sept. 5.—(Special.)—Miss Esther Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry M. Brown died Thursday afternoon at her home at 3:15, after being sick for about a year. She was born June 16, 1897, at Dakota, Minn. She is survived by her mother and father and sister Eunice. The funeral was held at the Methodist church Sunday morning at 10 o'clock and interment was made at the Dakota cemetery.

FATAL WRECK TODAY ON I. C.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 5.—Reports here say that the Chicago fast mail train on the Illinois Central railroad was wrecked at Scales Mound, Wis., one person being killed and seven injured, some seriously. Details are lacking.

BARNES' DEFENSE DELICIOUS, SAYS T. R.

LE MARS, Iowa, Sept. 5.—The New York situation again occupied Col. Roosevelt's mind following the publication of the statement of William Barnes, Jr., in which the Albany leader virtually attacked Roosevelt for the speech in which the colonel discussed the supreme court. "It is perfectly delicious," declared the colonel and the famous teeth showed, "to see Wm. Barnes, Jr., rushing to the defense of the supreme court."

STALWARTS LOSE AT EVERY POINT

La Follette Legislative Candidate Regarded as Certain of Nomination in the Primaries

McGOVERN IS THE FAVORITE

Popular Progressive Candidate's Record will Tell for Him in Voting at the Polls

THE MONEY CAMPAIGN FAILS

Progressive Ticket Locally from Top to Bottom; Burns and Doherty Democratic Victors

The pre-primary campaign is practically closed. With the speeches of "Bob" Cowie and Levi Pass Bancroft, the stalwarts concluded their efforts in this direction, and concluded their appeal for votes by sending out in La Crosse county a bunch of literature for their candidates.

In the last batch of literature it was noted that Gerald Arnold, stalwart candidate for the senate, whose parents are pronounced temperance people, sent into La Crosse county a card upon which he declared that he was opposed to county option. This card was NOT DISTRIBUTED in Trempealeau county which is FOR county option. It was so written as to lend the inference that Mr. Arnold's opponent, Otto Bosshard, is a county optionist, a thing Mr. Arnold knows is false.

Money, Money, Money Summing up the various efforts that have been made, and the known expenditures for ward workers, the stalwart campaign in this county has not only exceeded the cost of the Lewis campaign, but has probably cost more than did the notorious Stephenson campaign.

The stalwarts are in for another big bill of expense tomorrow. They have secured a practical monopoly on vehicles, including automobiles. All told, they have made a new record in their attempt to carry the election with money. The La Follette men are depending upon the loyalty of the rank and file. They have no money to spend, but they have in every precinct patriotic individual workers whose combined efforts are regarded as superior in efficiency to any organization that money can create.

La Follette a "Cinch" That Senator La Follette will carry the primaries in La Crosse county by an overwhelming majority is the surest thing in the political situation today.

Progressive Victory Certain

It is the belief of astute political thinkers, both stalwart and progressive, that the entire La Follette ticket, published on this page, will be nominated. The fact that Tom Morris is a candidate for a state office, added to his splendid legislative record, assures him an overwhelming vote. The standing of J. E. McConnell as an advocate of laws giving labor a square deal, his acknowledged constructive statesmanship and his loyalty to the progressive movement, make certain his nomination by a large majority. Otto Bosshard's triumph over Arnold, and Ira Green is not expected to get a "look in" against Keppel, the progressive candidate in the Second district. The entire county ticket, published on this page is expected to win easily, the doubtful points being the fight between Henry Freehoff and Ole Lund, both progressives, for county treasurer, and Derr, Bradley, McDonald and Marshall, all progressives, for sheriff.

Against County Option The county option business has been worked to a standstill by the stalwarts, but their plans have failed of effect. The voters know that Senator Morris voted against county option.

Saturday's Games
Red Wing, 3-2; Duluth, 2-0.
Winona, 4-0; Wausau, 2-2.
Superior, 6-0; Rochester, 1-4.

Well, "Bumpus" bumped them 4 to 2 Saturday. Eau Claire got but three hits off the former star flinger artist of the old pennant winning "Pinks" and La Crosse was bumped into a few more added notches on the percentage pole, by the score of 4 to 2. Jonesy deserved a clean shut out but a little loose support allowed the two runs to come over. The prop wiggled at times and the Eau Claire aggregation were quick to take advantage of it.

Boothby hurled for the pennant chasing bunch and one of the star twirlers of T. Schoonhoven and gang received a severe beating. He was hit hard in bunches.

La Crosse scored first in the second inning, a base on balls being responsible. Wals got the base on balls and started to steal second when Benrud made a bum heave, the ball going into center. Billy went to third and scored on an infield out to Kick. In the fifth Kading grounded an easy one to Snyder, who surprised everybody by hobbling it. Carter sacrificed the runner to second, Benrud fouled to third and when Connell let Moore's boulder pass by him to left field Kading scored. Boothby grounded to Connell.

In the fifth inning of the battle we added two more. Jones grounded to second and Connell was walked. Kernan skied out. Zalusky leaned against the ball for two bases in center, scoring Connell. Safford duplicated in the same garden with a single, counting Zalusky. In the seventh Zalusky got his second wallop also in center field and stole second. Benrud heaved wild the ball going to center and when Moore failed to get the poor throw to catch Zalusky at third base, Jack scored easily.

In the ninth Jones gave Kading a walk and Carter followed with a long three bagger in right center field which counted the tall first sacker.

La Crosse Wins Sunday

La Crosse won the first game of the Winona series at that place yesterday, the total being 4 to 1. A run in the third inning for Winona put the up river town in the lead and for six innings it looked like white wash for La Crosse. In the seventh, however, they drove in two runs, putting them in the lead and in the eighth clinched the game with two more runs. The final score was 4 to 1. Score: R H E

MORRIS? OR HUDNALL?

TOM MORRIS
Progressive Candidate for LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR
on Republican Ticket
Primary, Sept. 6, 1910

Following is the official record of the respective votes cast in the state senate during the last two sessions of the legislature by Tom Morris and George B. Hudnall, opposing candidates for the republican nomination for lieutenant governor. Voters should read this record; it furnishes an infallible guide in choosing between these two candidates:

Resolution providing that the campaign expenses of United States Senator Isaac Stephenson be investigated.
Morris voted yes.
Hudnall voted no.

Bill for the establishment of a binder twine plant in the state's prison at Waupun.
Morris voted yes.
Hudnall voted no.

Bill repealing the law that contributory negligence on the part of a railroad employee shall prevent the recovery of damages for injuries sustained in the employment of railroads—109-S, '07.
Morris voted yes.
Hudnall voted no.

Bill prohibiting corporations from grabbing water power sites in Wisconsin—63-A, '09.
Morris voted yes.
Hudnall voted no.

Bill extending the time of notice of action for personal injury in Wisconsin from one to two years.
Morris voted yes.
Hudnall voted no.

HAILWORTHY WINNER

CURES OLD SORES

Every old sore comes from some kind of impurity in the blood. It remains an open, discharging place on the flesh because the circulation constantly deposits into the fibres and tissues which surround the spot, the infectious matter with which the blood is contaminated. It is impossible for the sore to heal while the blood is in this impure state. S. S. S. heals old sores because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers; it goes into the circulation and removes the cause from the blood. When the blood has been purified there is no longer any inflammatory impurity or infectious matter to irritate the place, and nature causes a certain and natural healing of the ulcer. It is all well enough to endeavor to cleanse an old sore, or stop the itching, or absorb the discharge, with external applications, but a cure can never be reached in this way, because such applications do not reach the blood where the cause is located. S. S. S. does not simply cause a scab to form over an old sore, but beginning at the bottom it heals the place permanently by building new tissue, and filling the place with firm healthy flesh. S. S. S. is a purely botanical remedy, being made entirely of roots herbs and barks, each of which has a direct and lasting effect in removing impurities and poisons from the circulation. Old people who have suffered for years with a chronic sore will find S. S. S. a most helpful tonic and system builder in counteracting the debilitating effects of the old ulcer. Special book on Sores and Ulcers sent to all who write.

them. We CAN say this however—progressive republicans should vote to nominate one of the four above named men; no progressive republican votes should be cast for Wright or Moore. Neither of these men is better qualified than the least experienced of the four progressives. Moore is a stalwart, and Wright is what the man he is talking to is. Good service and good politics strongly urge that voters take their choice of Derr, Bradley, McDonald and Marshall.

LABOR DAY

This is Labor Day, and truly it is a great day for Labor. It is Labor's day of celebration in a year that has seen greater strides toward equality among men than has any year in the history of the United States since the Civil War.

Tomorrow is primary day. Labor is interested in the voting that will be done. Labor recognizes that a great movement is on, in all parties, and in every state, for further recognition of Labor's rights.

A few days ago Col. Theodore Roosevelt, who will probably be the next president of the United States, said in a speech in Kansas:

"No man can be a good citizen unless he has a wage more than sufficient to cover the bare cost of living and hours of work short enough so that after his day's work is done he will have time and energy to bear his share in the management of the community."

Col. Roosevelt has gone further than that. He has publicly advocated that the government make it its business to see that people who work for wages are fairly paid and have reasonable hours.

Robert M. La Follette, whose reelection to the senate of the United States seems assured, delivered in Madison the other day a powerful speech in which he demanded that government be wrested from the capitalists and restored to the men who really make the dollars. J. E. McConnell, candidate in this district for member of the assembly, during the last session of the legislature joined with Assemblyman Webber in securing the passage of a bill repealing the unjust law that a workman could recover no damage for injuries sustained in an accident, provided he was in any degree responsible for the accident, even though his employer was much more responsible for it. He also aided in passing a bill to improve the condition of homes rented to laboring men, a bill giving an injured man two years instead of one in which to begin an action for damages, a bill to improve cabooses used by trainmen and a bill limiting the hours of work that can be imposed upon children. Merlin Hull recently said of Mr. McConnell:

"If the laboring men of La Crosse will consider his (Mr. McConnell's) good work on labor legislation and want an able advocate for their cause in the next assembly, they will turn out to a man and give him a very large majority."

The present trend in politics and government is strongly toward recognition of the rights of the masses. Capital has had its day. Labor is going to have its inning. Government is going to respond to the demand of the people who create the wealth a few have usurped. Parties are but names, principles and men who represent principles are going to rule. Be it a La Follette, a Roosevelt, a Bryan, a Falk, a Debbis, a Darrow, a McGovern or a McConnell, so long as he stands up and fights for the rights of men and against the special interests of the few, he should have the support of Labor.

Today Labor holds carnival. Reviewing the year, with its many victories and its few defeats, one realizes that the gala day may well be one of rejoicing. The Tribune feels that in congratulating Labor upon this occasion it is not inappropriate to add that in no city does organized labor consist of a more intelligent, manly and public spirited body of men than that which is making holiday in La Crosse today.

MCCONNELL LABOR'S FRIEND

In re-publishing the following editorial relating to the legislative record of Assemblyman J. E. McConnell, taken from the Black River Falls Journal, we are impressed by the fact that it could not have been written for political purposes. Mr. McConnell is not running for office at Black River Falls, and the Black River Falls Journal probably has not five subscribers in Mr. McConnell's district. Therefore the editorial must be accepted as a personal tribute from one who knows Mr. McConnell well and is familiar with his work in the legislature. The writer is Merlin Hull, publisher of The Journal, and a member of the assembly. He says:

"Assemblyman John E. McConnell of La Crosse is a candidate for re-nomination to the assembly and is meeting with some opposition. If the good people of La Crosse will but give Mr. McConnell's good record in the last legislature the consideration it deserves they will renominate and re-elect him by immense majorities. In the legislature he was a credit not only to the district which sent him, but also to the whole state. No more capable, honest, upright man sat in the last assembly, and the state needs him and just as many more like him as it can get in the next assembly. He is a man of ability, a student of statesmanship and a faithful advocate of honest principles. He studied measures to know what would be their result. He went deep into the causes which made legislation necessary. He formed his opinion upon broad knowledge and when formed he followed them fearlessly.

"The many measures regarding labor and the rights of laboring men received his special attention and he worked with great earnestness for those measures designed to improve labor conditions and give greater opportunity to the laborer. He worked hard all through the session, gave his entire time to his duties and sought to accomplish what he considered he was sent there to accomplish—good wholesome laws in the interest of the state and the people.

"The people of Wisconsin need just such men in public service and the people of La Crosse should be proud of the opportunity to send him back again. He is a man who can be trusted by the people and doesn't have to be watched. What he promises he performs. His advice and counsel are sought by other members regardless of their political affiliation. With broader experience from his first session's work and wider acquaintance with the affairs of the state, he will at once take a position as a leader, and in that capacity he will stand for those principles in legislation which will best serve the interests of the people.

"The re-election of such a man should be unquestioned. The people of La Crosse who have known him, must know his record. Those who do not know him should learn his record and they will have no difficulty recognizing the character of the man who made it.

"If the laboring men of La Crosse will consider his good work on labor legislation and want an able advocate for their cause in the next assembly, they will turn out to a man and give him a very large majority."

The stalwart campaign committee invites citizens "on all sides" of the political question to hear "Bob" Cowie's speech tonight. The invitation is peculiarly appropriate, for Mr. Cowie has been on "all sides." It may not have been determined whether or not "the constitution follows the flag," but it is settled that "Bob" Cowie's politics follows the job.

The apparition of "Bob" Cowie as a stalwart campaign gadflyer recalls the fact that "Bob's" apology to the Stephenson investigation committee was that he got "only" $150. Bob does hate to be a piker. Perhaps he has nothing for which to apologize this time.

Mr. Esch is probably not haunted by any fears that the La Follette men who went the limit in an earnest effort to send him to the United States senate before he had publicly endorsed their political program are going to turn upon him following his Wannebo hall speech championing the progressive movement.

THE REASON

A little girl of six years who, with her mother and 10 year old brother, Beverly, is spending the summer in a suburban town through which a small creek takes its way, came to her mother in tears the other afternoon.

"Mamma," she cried, while the tears streamed down her cheeks. Beverly and that little Owen boy next door have got the kitten and they are throwing it in the creek, and just as soon as it swims out they throw it back again."

And little Pauline wept afresh at the thought. The indignant mother hurried down to the stream in the wake of Pauline, who led her to the bank where small Beverly and his companion had just flung the miserable kitten out into the water again.

"Beverly!" she exclaimed. "I'm ashamed of you, torturing a poor little kitten like that. Your little sister, Pauline, has a kind heart, and she came with tears in her eyes and told me about your shameful conduct. Why do you not try to be kind hearted, as she is?"

"It wasn't any kind heartedness that made Pauline go and tell you," returned Beverly, as he fished out the dripping kitten. "It was because Owen and I were taking turns at throwing it in and we wouldn't give Pauline a chance to throw it in herself!"—Washington Star.

He Never Bored

A group of lawyers seated on the terrace of an Atlantic City hotel, talked about the law.

"John G. Johnson," said a Philadelphia lawyer, "can be as eloquent as the best, but eloquence is only one small part of his assets. Learning, wit, satire, comedy—it would take a dictionary to tell the resources wherewith Mr. Johnson wins—for he always wins—his cases."

"I assisted him once in a case where his opponent went in for pathos. The man, in an hour's speech shed tears himself, the client he was pleading for shed tears, and the witnesses on his side ostentatiously squeezed out a tear or two."

"But Mr. Johnson spoiled all that pathos by rising and looking about him with a chuckle. His hands were thrust deep in his pockets, and he said:

"Well, gentlemen, you may as well understand from the start that I am not going to bore for water."—Washington Star.

Tommy—Pa, what is an equinox? Pa—Why, er—it is—ahem! For goodness sake, Tommy, don't you know anything about mythology, at all? An equinox was a fabled animal, half-horse, half-cow. No Insult Intended "Haven't we met before?" inquired the bent-nosed man in the day coach.

"I hope not," replied the short-haired man, who was sharing his seat.

"You hope not!" ejaculatorily repeated the first speaker. "Do you mean that, sir, for an insult?"

"I intend it for just the reverse of an insult, my friend," responded the man with the cropped hair, "and I think you will appreciate my sentiment and feel like thanking me for giving it expression when I tell you that this is the first day in thirty years that I have been out of the state's prison."—Chicago Daily News.

A Double Advantage

It rarely happens in every day life that any one has the privilege of testing the old adage of "killing two birds with one stone" so thoroughly as the hero of the following anecdote. Charles Godfrey Leland is responsible for it.

"I once knew a gentleman named Stewart," he wrote. "While camping out, en route, and in a tent with him, it chanced that among the other gentlemen who had tented with us there were two terrible snorers."

"Now Mr. Stewart had heard that you may stop a man's snoring by whistling, and here was a wonderful opportunity. So I waited until one man was coming down with his snore, diminishing, and the other was rising, crescendo, and at the exact point of intersection, moderate, I blew my car whistle, and so got both birds at one shot. I stopped them both."—Youth's Companion.

The GIRL FROM HIS TOWN

MARIE VAN VORST

Copyright by Robt. Merrill Company

"A lady like you," he said gently, "knows a great deal more about how things are done than either Dan or me. We ain't tenderfeet in the West, not by a long shot, but we see so few of a certain kind of picture shows that when they do come round they're likely to make us lose our minds! You know, yourself, a circus in a town fifty miles from a railroad drives the people crazy."

Now, Dan's a little like the boy with his eyes on the hole in the tent. He would commit murder to get inside and see that show." He nodded and smiled to her as though he expected her to follow his crude simile.

"Now, I have seen you a lot of times." And she couldn't help reminding him, "Not of your own accord, Mr. Ruggles."

"Well, I don't know," he slowly admitted. "I always felt I had my money's worth, and the night you ate with us at the Carlton I understood pretty well how the boy with his eyes at the tent hole would feel."

But he tapped his broad chest with the hand that held the cigar between the first and second fingers. "I know just what kind of a heart you've got, for I waited at the stage door and I know you don't get all your applause inside the Gaiety Theater."

"Goodness," she murmured, "they make an awful fuss about nothing."

"Now," he continued, leaning forward a trifle toward her languid, half interested figure, "I just want you to think of him as a little boy. He's only twenty-two. He knows nothing of the world. The money you give to the poor doesn't come so hard perhaps as this will. It's a big sacrifice, but I want you to let the boy go."

She smiled slightly, found her handkerchief, which was tucked up the cuff of her blouse, pressed the little bit of linen to her lips as though to steady them, then she asked abruptly:

"What has he said to you?" "Lord!" Ruggles groaned. "Said to me! My dear young lady, he is much too rude to speak. Dan sort of breathes and snorts around like a lunatic. He was dangling around that duchess when I was here before, but she didn't scare me any."

And Letty Lane, now smiling at him, relieved by his break from a more intense tone, asked:

"Now, you are scared?" "Well," Ruggles drawled, "I was pretty sure that woman didn't care anything for the boy. Are you her kind?"

It was the best stroke he had made. She almost sprang up from her chair.

"Heavens," she exclaimed, "I guess I'm not!" Her face flushed.

"I had rather see a son of mine dead than married to a woman like that," he said.

"Why, Mr. Ruggles," she exclaimed passionately, addressing him with interest for the first time, "what do you know about me? What? What? You have seen me dance and heard me sing."

And he interrupted her.

"Ten times, and you are a bully dancer and a bully singer, but you do other things than dance and sing. There is not a man living that would want to have his mother dress that way."

She controlled a smile. "Never mind that. People's opinions are very different about that sort of thing. You have seen me at dinner with your boy, as you call him, and you can't say that I did anything but ask him to help the poor. I haven't led Dan on. I have tried to show him just what you are making me go through now."

If she acted well and danced well, it was hard for her to talk. She was evidently under strong emotion and it needed her control not to burst into tears and lose her chance.

"Of course, I know the things you have heard. Of course, I know what is said about me," and she stopped.

Ruggles didn't press her any further; he didn't ask her if the things were true. Looking at her as he did, watching her as he did, there was in him a feeling so new, so troubling that he found himself more anxious to protect her than to bring her to justice.

"There are worse, far worse women than I am, Mr. Ruggles. I will never do Dan any harm."

Here her visitor leaned forward and put one of his big hands lightly over one of hers, patted it a moment, and said:

"I want you to do a great deal better than that."

She had picked up a photograph off the table, a pretty picture of herself in Mandalay, and turned it nervously between her fingers as she said with irritation:

"I haven't been in the theatrical world not to guess at this 'Worried Father' act, Mr. Ruggles. I told you I knew just what you were going to say."

"Wrong!" he repeated. "The business is old enough perhaps, lots of good jobs are old, but this is a little different."

He took the turning picture and laid it on the table, and quietly possessed himself of the small cold hands. Blair's solitaire shone up to him. Ruggles looked into Letty Lane's eyes. "He is only twenty-two; it ain't fair, it ain't fair. He could count the times he has been on a lark. I guess. He hasn't even been to an eastern college. He is no fool, but he's darned simple."

She smiled faintly. The man's face near her own was very simple indeed.

"You have seen so much," he urged, "so many fellows. You have been such a queen, I dare say you could get any man you wanted." He repeated, "Most any one."

"I have never seen any one like Dan."

"Just so: he ain't your kind. That is what I am trying to tell you."

She withdrew her hand from his violently.

"There you are wrong. He is my kind. He is what I like, and he is what I want to be like."

A wave of red dyed her face, and in a tone more passionate than she had ever used to her lover, she said to Ruggles:

"I love him—I love him!" Her words sent something like a sword through the older man's heart. He said gently: "Don't say it. He doesn't know what love means yet."

He wanted to tell her that the girl Dan married should be the kind of woman his mother was, but Ruggles couldn't bring himself to say the words. Now, as he sat near her, he was growing so complex that his brain was turning round. He heard her murmur:

"I told you I knew your act, Mr. Ruggles. It isn't any use."

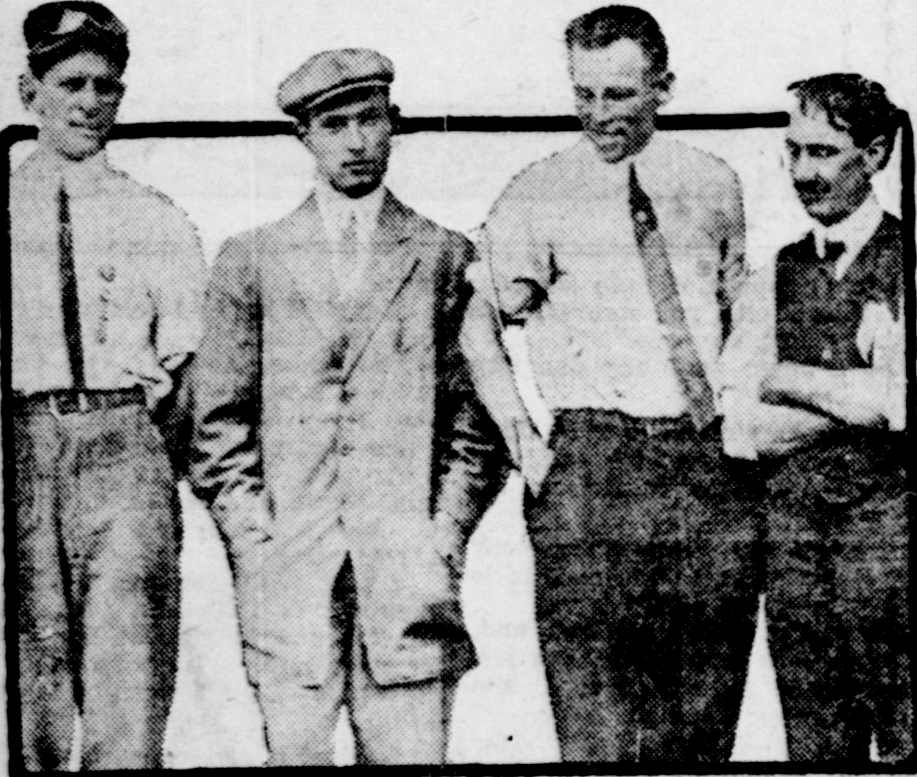

This brought him back to his position and once more he leaned toward her and, in a different tone from the one he had intended to use, murmured:

"You don't know. You haven't any idea. I do ask you to let Dan go, that's a fact. I have got something else to propose in its place. It ain't quite the same, but it is clear—marry me!"

She gave a little exclamation

ARE ALL TOO BUSY

Candidates for Office Have Not Time to Mix Into Plan to Raise Saloon Licenses

Alderman George B. Marvin of the North side in a communication to The Tribune today, declares he has stated that perhaps the matter of raising saloon licenses from $200 to $500 will not be voted upon, for the reason the necessary 700 signatures are lacking on the petitions he has been circulating.

The alderman takes occasion to rap the brewers and officials, but intimates that sooner or later his plan to advance the license to $500 will be carried.

La Crosse, Wis., Sept. 3rd, 1910.

The alderman says:

To The La Crosse Tribune:
Gentlemen: I notice in this evening's paper that I had made an announcement that the question of raising the saloon license would not be voted on this year. I did state that perhaps it would not as I had been out of town for more than three weeks and had been unable to attend to getting many to circulate petitions. The politicians of course are too busy in their campaigns to attend to matters that are of so little importance compared to their being elected and further there are so many candidates in the field that unless they would sign a petition (and of course each one is afraid of the effect that it would have on the brewers who own the city) it would be hard to find enough to make up the necessary 700.

The better class, who are anxious to see better things are generally too busy to bother their heads or soil their hands helping to make things better, but are willing to criticize one who does try if they don't succeed, but very seldom offer to take a hand. The other fellows are always ready to support each other even though they are a very small majority.

Nearly every city official and many business men have expressed their anxiety to vote for higher license when it comes to a vote so that I know that there will be no question when the vote is taken that our license will rightly be raised to $500 and at the same time make a keepers' interest in making a cleaner, better business out of his place in spite of the encouragement that he gets from the "powers that be" to run a wide open disgraceful business. The decent saloon men will then also see to it that the Houses of Shame will not retail so much beer which is delivered daily to them by our breweries.

Yours Truly,

GEO. B. MARVIN, JR.

SAGE FOR DARKENING THE HAIR.

There is nothing new about the idea of using sage for restoring the color of the hair. Our great-grandmothers kept their locks soft, dark and glossy by using a "sage tea." Whenever their hair fell out or took on a dull, faded or streaked appearance, they made a brew of sage leaves and applied it to their hair with wonderful beneficial effect. Nowadays we don't have to resort to the old-time, time-consuming method of gathering the herbs and making the brew. This is done by skillful chemists better than we could do it ourselves, and all we have to do is to call for the ready-made product. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, containing sage in the proper strength, with the addition of Sulphur, another old-time scalp remedy.
This preparation is sold by all first-class druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York
City, upon receipt of price.
For sale and recommended by O.

F. WHITEWATER GOES ON WAR PATH

Descendant of Chief Blackhawk Becomes Enthusiast
at Wild West Show
and Tears Loose

Frank Whitewater, who claims to be a direct descendant of Chief Black Hawk, became so enthused over the scenes in the wild west show here Saturday that he started on a warpath himself, landing in a cell in the police station.

Whitewater spent the afternoon of Saturday hobnobbing with the Sioux Indians with the show and spent much time consuming fire water.

He went to the night show.

He only grunted when the "Champion of the West" rode around the arena popping glass balls with a revolver and grunted at the feats with the lasso performed by the cowboys.

He showed some signs of interest, however, when a comely Indian maiden tore around the ring clinging to the side of a pony and when the Indians attacked the stage coach.

Whitewater was out of his seat and doing as good a war dance as any of his red brethren in the arena.

He danced out of the tent waving his arms and shouting, cursing in the Indian language at white men who happened in his way and landed in the arms of Detectives Wendling and McGrath.

From his cell in the police station this morning he sends word to Chief Webster that he is "Heap good Injun."

turned this morning from Washington county, where he delivered two speeches in behalf of Senator La Follette and Geo. E. Hoyt, candidate for the state senate. He spoke at Hat-ford and Jackson.

BANCROFT SPEAKS TO SMALL CROWD

Declares that No Man Is Big Enough to Dictate
How Others in Party
Shall Vote

Before a crowd made up of about 50, including democrats and progressive republicans, Levi H. Bancroft of Richland Center, Stand-pat candidate for attorney general, delivered an address Saturday evening at Concordia hall. The speaker was introduced by J. L. Pettingill, who said he deplored the fact that not more voters had come out to hear Mr. Bancroft.

In his opening remarks Mr. Bancroft spoke of the early history of this country, how insurgents had always existed and how, he claimed,
had never accomplished anything.
He said he admired Roosevelt, but he believed there are 1,000 Roosevelts in this country. He said there is a tendency for the people of this country to prostrate themselves at the feet of one man and in this connection he said that he believed the American people are able to vote intelligently upon political questions without being dictated to by one man. The same reference was made to Senator La Follette.

The speaker said that what was once a benefit to this country, the extension of the railroad system into new country and the protection to home industries have become a menace to the people, but he believed there are laws and courts to regulate all evils along these lines. He said he had been connected with the progressive movement in this state as much as any other man, with the exception of the leader himself. He said he voted for the public utilities bill and stood for all progressive legislation. He claimed there was no occasion for the agitation that is now going on in this state and nation.

He said the man who preaches the doctrine of hatred, suspicion and discontent is a dangerous man and one who should not be trusted. He said that the constant preaching of suspicion will eventually disrupt any republic.

In closing he referred to the late Frank Tucker, saying that he would lay down all his political ambitions if he could bring him back to earth and to his family, but now that he is dead he pleaded that the voters support him instead of the dead man.

SECRETARY GRAN TO BE CHAIRMAN

Secretary A. C. Gran of the La Crosse Y. M. C. A. will be chairman of the employed officers' conference of the Wisconsin Y. M. C. A. to be held in Milwaukee tomorrow and Wednesday.

The state board of directors will be present Wednesday afternoon.
The board of directors and the employed officers will have a banquet at the Y. M. C. A. building and will then go in a body to the Auditorium to hear Theodore Roosevelt.

Among the speakers at the conference will be W. H. Wones, state boys' secretary, Milwaukee; F. C. Cogges-hall, boys' secretary, Milwaukee; S.
A. Boyd, physical director, La Crosse; R. C. Higley, Oshkosh; C. J.
Goodsell, general secretary, Fond du Lac.

Prof. Silas Evans, Madison, religious work director of the Wisconsin University association, will be present.

NORMAL SCHOOL HEADS WILL MEET

Conferences of educators of Wisconsin to consider matters vital to the welfare and betterment of the normal schools of the state, a distinct departure originating in this state, have been ordered by the board of normal regents and are expected to result in marked improvement in the schools.

At the annual meeting of the board in June a special committee reported a plan for conferences upon seven general subjects with a view to giving greater flexibility to the work and stimulate free discussion and to call forth the best thought on questions of far reaching importance. The suggestion of the committee was adopted and the subjects and psychology; English; history;
and psychology; English; history;
civics and economics; geography,
science, mathematics and music.

These conferences are to be held in the assembly chamber at Madison
on the following dates:
Mathematics, Oct. 7 and 8; music,
Oct. 14 and 15; geography, Oct. 21
and 22; English, Oct. 28 and 29;
science, Nov. 11 and 12; history, civics and economics, Nov. 18 and 19; pedagogy and psychology, Dec. 2 and 3.

Much is expected as a result of these conferences and normal school men and educators generally throughout the country will await a report of these proceedings with interest.

MARRIAGES CLOSE THE UTTER HOTEL

Girls Become Such Fine
Cooks Trempealeau Bachelors Snap Them
Up Quick

In the village of Trempealeau there prevails the strange condition of the Utter house, the leading hotel, being forced to close for the reason that all the girls the proprietor succeeds in hiring to help with the work within a very short time take offers of marriage, wed and leave, and the proprietor, Miss R. Utter, is left without help.

The Utter house is now closed to transient trade for this reason. During the past few months Miss Utter has employed a large number of girls and in each instance they have won all the hearts of Trempealeau bachelors and unmarried men generally, and all have married. The theory in Trempealeau, where the high quality of Miss Utter's cooking and house keeping is known, is that the girls become such good cooks and housekeepers after a few weeks of service at the hotel that they attract the attention of the unmarried element and are promptly "copped out."

The hotel still has a few regular boarders and roomers, but until the proprietor can secure a couple of new girls the hostelry has been closed to transient trade.

These reasons the speech-making this year has been eliminated.

The parade formed on the market square shortly after 9 o'clock and was divided into two sections, each one headed by a band. The officers of the Trades and Labor council and the members of the committee on arrangements rode in carriages. The committee follows: Chairman, John Rae; L. A. Weigel, George Naegle, A. B. Chandler, Theodore Strauss, Otto E. Kowalke, William Mitchell and J. Olson.

John Naegle acted as the chief marshal of the day. The parade passed over the following streets: From the market square on Fourth to Pearl, west on Pearl to Front, north on Front to Main, east on Main to Fifth, north on Fifth to State, east on State to the fair grounds.

The parade was made up as follows.

NEAR-CHAMPIONS TO MEET TONIGHT

Battle at Philadelphia to Furnish Runner-up for the Championship with Negro

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Local sporting experts are flocking in goodly numbers to Philadelphia today to witness tonight's six round go between Al Kaufman and "Bill" Lang, as the match is expected to furnish the runner-up for the championship match with Johnson.

The betting today was a shade in favor of Kaufman, but most of it was of the "piking" character with a twenty-five dollar limit. The trouble is that little is known about Lang. Although he stood off Tommy Burns in their last match his friends declare, so that he should have drawn the decision, Burns has intimated that he had not trained as perseveringly as he should have. But it is known that Lang is fairly clever, with a "kick" in his left mitt like that of an army mule, and he may slip one over on Kaufman, when the big Californian is not looking.

Kaufman will have the benefit of Billy Delaney's handling and advice and that should prove a high class asset. He thinks that the Californian will win by a clean knockout before the end of the sixth round.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—No matter what the outcome of tonight's fight in Philadelphia, the winner will be matched with the victor in tomorrow night's bout in Boston. At the Hub, Joe Jeannette's manager said this morning that his man will "knock the block" off Sam Langford and will get the chance. But Langford is confident of success. He has a real grudge against Jeannette which goes back to the time when both were unknown and he threatens to "cave Joe's slats in" with his heavy body blows.

for Hunter

FARGO, N. D., Sept. 5.—Labor day in Fargo, the labor day of practically all North Dakota, claimed Col. Roosevelt as the principal feature of its celebration today. Not since the days of the old Lind booms throughout the state has North Dakota gathered so great a crowd as jammed the hotels of Fargo to join Roosevelt in a great Labor day celebration.

Fifteen thousand people crowded the streets about the Great Northern station when the colonel arrived last evening, and that same 15,000 followed him about all day today from the hills of the Fargo college to Island Park. The Waldorf, where the colonel stayed, was filled almost all night with an eager throng, cheering for "Teddy." They brought on a band and destroyed the colonel's dream of the "big sleep" very effectively until early today.

1912 Boom Sprung Again.

Here again today the "Roosevelt in 1912" boom was the big subject of conversation.

Welcomes the Children.

A welcome to Fargo by 100 little children all carrying big Teddy bears pleased the colonel immensely.

Seidel Heads Parade.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 5.—

For the first time in Milwaukee's history, the annual Labor day celebration was headed by city officials today.

Mayor Seidel, the socialist city executive, used over 6 thousand representatives of organized labor in a grand parade.

Thousands March in Pa.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 5.—Ten thousand laboring men today participated in the Labor day parade which was the largest held here in years.

Later the marchers attended the dedication of the new Labor temple.

At Greensburg today 10,000 striking miners marched through the streets as a demonstration against the coal operators who have refused to arbitrate.

BIG CONNECTICUT
FAIR OPENS TODAY

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 5.—

The Connecticut state fair opened today with the grand circuit meet at Historic Charter Oak park this afternoon as the leading feature.

Ulan, 1:58 1/4, champion trotter of the world, was expected to try to lower his mark. The classic Charter Oak trotting stakes of $10,000, 2:09 class, was also carded.

Frank Coffyn, in a Wright aeroplane, is scheduled to make daily flights.

DRUGGIST

STOMACH MISERY JUST VANISHES

Indigestion, Gas, Sourness, Heartburn and Dyspepsia go and you will feel fine in five minutes

As there is often some one in your family who suffers an attack of indigestion or some form of Stomach trouble, why don't you keep some Diapepsin in the house handy?

This harmless blessing will digest anything you can eat without the slightest discomfort, and overcome a sour, gassy Stomach five minutes after.

Tell your pharmacist to let you read the formula, plainly printed on these 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily see why it makes Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Heartburn and other distress go in five minutes, and relieves at once such miseries as Belching of Gas, Eructations of sour, undigested food, Nausea, Headaches, Dizziness, Constipation and other Stomach disorders.

Some folks have tried so long to find relief from Indigestion and Dyspepsia or an out-of-order stomach with the common, every-day cures advertised that they have about made up their minds that they have something else wrong, or believe theirs is a case of Nervousness, Gastritis, Catarrh of the Stomach or Cancer.

This, no doubt, is a serious mistake. Your real trouble is what you eat does not digest; instead, it ferments and sours, turns to acid, Gas and Stomach poison, which putrefy in the digestive tract and intestines, and, besides, poison the breath with nauseous odors.

A hearty appetite, with thorough digestion, and without the slightest discomfort or misery of the stomach, is waiting for you as soon as you decide to try Pape's Diapepsin.

AEROPLANE LOST IN A DENSE FOG

Captain Baldwin Hero of the Latest Thriller in Navigation of the Clouds

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Lost in a heavy fog and guiding his aeroplane by sound alone, is the latest aerial thriller, of which Captain Thomas S. Baldwin was the central figure. Baldwin made an ascension in his biplane at Garden City yesterday and ran into a dense bank of fog. He lost all idea of direction and could see nothing by which to guide his course. The situation was rapidly becoming desperate, as the aviator was afraid to go ahead and equally afraid to descend. Finally he caught the sound of another aeroplane in air and directing his course by it, he soon emerged from the fog and was able to land in safety.

PRAIRIE RESIDENT
COMMITTS SUICIDE

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, Wis., Sept. 5.—

When Mrs. John McDaniel of Gays Mill went to call her husband to supper Saturday night she found his lifeless body hanging in the barn.

Mr. McDaniel had fastened a rope around his neck and jumped from a large box. His neck was broken, death evidently having been instantaneous.

He was a man about fifty-five years of age and has been in ill health for a long time. During the day on Saturday he showed some signs of despondency and it is believed he committed suicide during a period of mental aberration.

MRS. C. L. JENKS
IN BAD RUNAWAY

Mrs. C. L. Jenks, little son and a lady friend, were thrown from a buggy when the horse ran away on Third street this morning and seriously bruised.

A wheel of the rig collapsed, frightening the horse. The runaway was stopped on Second and Pearl streets, having started at Third street.

JEWELRY FOR GIFTS

One of the little refinements of civilization, and about the only one which really defines the spirit of affection and good will is the bestowal of useful and beautiful gifts on the anniversary or the birthday.

This is a gift shop. Things we selected for just such occasions. You may spend one dollar or a hundred just to suit your fancy—with the assurance of perfect quality and good round values.

MISS ROESE OTT IS AT REST TODAY

Called in Bloom of Youth,
She Is Carried to Final Resting Place by Her Friends

Following beautiful and impressive services conducted by the Rev. Father Franke at St. Joseph's Cathedral at 9 o'clock this morning, Miss Rose Ott, the beautiful twenty-two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Ott, 1315 Main street, was laid away in the Catholic cemetery this morning.

Six young men, life long friends of the deceased, acted as pallbearers while six young women, who had been her companions since childhood, were honorary pallbearers.

The pallbearers were: Arthur Ruppel, Alfred Miller, J. E. Brenner, Hiram Hegge, Peter Capellan and Arthur Erickson. The honorary pallbearers were the Misses Nannie Bartl, Marion Miller, Lilly Dagenish, Clara Munz, Anna Hackner and Nellie Spettel.

The floral tributes were many and most beautiful. Two carriages were required to carry them.

The sermon of the Rev. Father Franke was a eulogy of the life of the young woman, he saying that her life had been illustrative of all that is lovable and good.

Following the church services the cortege went direct to the Catholic cemetery.

The deceased is survived by a father and mother, one sister, Miss Elsie Ott, and a brother, Benjamin Ott.

BARCELONA TIED UP BY A STRIKE

Business Tied Up in Hotbed of Revolutionary Activity and Spain Fears
for Results

MADRID, Sept. 5.—Barcelona is in the grip of a general strike today. No newspapers are published, street cars tide up and business is at a standstill. Because Barcelona is the hotbed of revolutionary activity, the government is fearful that the strike there will result seriously and is preparing to reinforce the garrison.

It is feared here that the Barcelona strike will be extended all over Spain, though the collapse of the Bilbao general strike and the Saragossa strike has given rise to the belief that the threatened nationwide walk out will be short lived, even if disastrous.

At Bilbao, only the miners remain on strike.

ty option, and that McConnell and Rosshard are both opposed to county option.

Two Local Contests

There is a contest between Andy Thompson (progressive) and Frank Aiken (stalwart) for county register of deeds, and between S. D. Woodhouse (progressive) and Russell Smith (stalwart) for clerk of the court. Both Thompson and Woodhouse are expected to win.

McGovern A Favorite

McGovern is a favorite for governor, despite the big money campaign waged by Lewis. The latter is regarded as having no chance to win, and the fight is between McGovern and Fairchild. Both oppose county option, but the fact that McGovern is a progressive and a tried friend of the laboring people gives him a lead over Fairchild, who is wrong on the tariff, opposed to Roosevelt and La Follette, and a standpatter in general.

Democratic Contests

There is little appearance of a contest in the democratic primaries. Chris J. Burns and Mike McHugh are opposing each other for the nomination for sheriff. Both are good men, but Mr. Burns seems to have all the better of the argument.

John Doherty will have the full support of his party for attorney general, and is expected to head the ticket in La Crosse county.

CHILD DIES TODAY
OF SCARLET FEVER

Dorothy Schaller, the 4 year old daughter of Mrs. Mary Schaller, 1620 South Twelfth street, died this morning at 12:30 after a short illness of scarlet fever. Deceased is survived by her mother, four sisters and a brother.

The funeral will be held Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock from St. Wenceslaus church, Rev. X. Till officiating. Interment will take place at the Catholic cemetery.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Paul, Sunday, at the home of Col. and Mrs. F. A. Copeland, a son.

Abner G. Withee of Watertown, Fla., is spending a few days with his mother Mrs. Paul.

NELSON AND HESTER MAY GET TOGETHER

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 5.—Battling Nelson appeared here in a new role, that of announcer for a moving picture show. Nelson arrived in Kansas City this morning from Denver and has consented to describe the Jeffries-Johnson fight as the films are shown in the Hippodrome. The Battler also has a theatrical engagement in Kansas City, Kas. He will be in this vicinity a week.

Sid Hester, promoter of the Wolgast-Nelson match, who was in Kansas City late yesterday enroute to Iowa to sell picture films for the Nelson-Wolgast fight expects to return Monday. There is a possibility of Nelson and Hester getting together, according to the opinion of local fans.

Nelson is accompanied by his trainer, Abdul the Turk.

CHARGED WITH THE THEFT OF $115,000

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 5.—Charged with embezzling $115,000 from Albert S. Moore, a Baltimore, Md., chewing gum manufacturer for whom he was formerly a traveling salesman, Carl Moore, 19, of Wheeling, W. Va., was taken to Allentown, Pa., where he will face charges filed against him, by the gum company.

ANDREWS VS. KANE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 5.—The officials of the National Athletic club have matched Marty Kane of Chicago and Freddie Andrews to fight in the semi-windup to the Jack Redmond-Frankie White fight, which will be held Friday night at the Hippodrome.

CLOTHING CO. WINS FIRST OF SERIES

The La Crosse Clothing company not get a man by third. The Cloth-three for the championship of the city by putting down the La Crosse Athletes by a score of 5 to 2. The game was a surprise to many, all hopes being centered on the Athletes.

The Athletes started out with two runs in the first, put after that could not get a man by third. The Clothing company brought in two runs in the second, two in the fifth and one in the sixth.

The second game of the series will be played this afternoon and in case the Athletes win, a third game will be played at some time to be decided later. The championship also includes a purse of $50.

EDDIE HEARNE WINS INDIANAPOLIS RACE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 5.—Eddie Hearne, a courageous youth from Chicago, piloted the big Benz car to victory in the 100 mile free for all and the ten mile open event for the speedway helmet and so carried off the majority of the laurels in the first day of the final race meetings upon the Indianapolis speedway here on Saturday. Hearne's victory in the 100 mile battle netted him $1,000 in cash and by winning the short free for all he retained possession of the speedway helmet which he had captured at the July meeting with the same machine and which bears with it a salary of $50 a week.

FAST LIFE GETS KETCHEL'S "GOAT"

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 5.—The news that Stanley Ketchel had about reached the end of his tether physically caused no surprise. Ketchel has been burning the candle for quite a while and the present is not the first instance in which nature has called a halt.

INDIANA GETS STEFFEN

Walter Steffen, Chicago, half-back, quarterback and captain, is to succeed Sheldon as coach at Indiana university after this season. The rumor gained credence yesterday at Indianapolis when it was announced that the Maroon star would assist Sheldon this season. It is a well known fact that Sheldon will retire this season to practice law in Chicago, having coached the Crimson six years when the last game is played this season.

THE STORY OF LA FOLLETTE

Perhaps the "Story of La Follette" has never been better told than it is in the article by Richard Lloyd Jones which is the most illuminating contribution to the current number of Collier's.

Voters who read The Tribune will be called upon next Tuesday to decide whether or not Senator La Follette shall be renominated, and so timely and able is Mr. Jones' story that we reprint with the suggestion that it be read carefully between now and primary:

LA FOLLETTE.

(Richard Lloyd Jones in Collier's.)

The university of Wisconsin, much like Dartmouth in Daniel Webster's time, was in its formative stage when it produced its greatest alumnus. That was in 1879, when it was a crude, half-formed college and the title of university was a complete misnomer. More than a century ago an old French Huguenot family came to these emancipating shores, and through the course of empire which took its western way, these Huguenots came to settle ultimately in the promising town of Primrose, near the four lakes of which Longfellow sang—near the little capital city of Madison, which Sir Edwin Arnold once described as the choicest little city in the world, and near the college then in infancy.

Robert Marion La Follette came to this Huguenot family in a little log cabin at Primrose. He lost his father in his childhood, and until he was eighteen his years were spent in hard farm toil. When school was impossible, he schooled himself by night. Learn he must. He began early to do heroic things. He sold his father's farm in his nineteenth year and moved his mother's family to Madison, where he might gain what the meager little college had to give. He ran a college paper, wrote its contents, set the type, solicited its advertisements, and made his own collections. He did many other things to provide an income. It was no small task to support a growing family and go to college too. Bob did it. He therefore has a real knowledge of "God's patient poor," for whom he lives and for whom he labors.

Wanted to Follow the Drama

Among the shady elms of Cambridge there is a tradition that James Russell Lowell was graduated from Harvard with ten conditions. His pen had brought the college a distinction that carried him through. He himself often admitted that while in college he read almost every book but his text books. There is no ten-condition story about Robert Marion La Follette, Wisconsin, '79, that can be substantiated, but that he was a famously poor student in college rumor still. He was short on irregular verbs and compound equations, but he was long on human interest. In his sophomore year he carried to the interstate college oratorical contest an oration on Iago. With this he brought the prize to his college. Most winning orations of this amateur kind die at the close of their public declamation, but La Follette's "Iago" found publishers eager to put it between covers. For years it had a constant sale in the bookstores of the west. It advertised the college for which it was written and brought a modest and welcome royalty to its author. It fell into the hands of Edwin Booth, and its clear analysis of character is said to have prompted the distinguished tragedian to modify his delineation of the part. John McCullough came to Madison to see the author of this interpretation of character. To him the young Huguenot confided his histrionic ambitions. McCullough looked upon the boy, who was short of stature and possessed less than one hundred and twenty pounds of bone and flesh. McCullough's great frame towered above him. Placing a firm hand upon the frail youth, he said with a strong, deep voice: "Don't do it, my boy; don't do it. The actor must fill the eye as well as the mind. Suppose you I took you by the throat! The audience would rise and cry out to me: 'Shame—shame—don't hurt the little fellow.'"

Deeply disappointed over this advice, La Follette nevertheless abandoned his dream of curtain calls and turned his thoughts to courts and law. Soon after McCullough's visit, however, Lawrence Barrett came to see the boy who wrote of Iago. He was enthusiastic in his speech, declaring the thesis to be a most penetrating analysis. "Any one who can interpret as you can," he said, "can act. Give your life to the drama." La Follette repeated McCullough's advice. "Nonsense," said Barrett, "that is the limitation of the purely physical actor. Booth is only half an inch taller than you. It is the brain, and not the body that makes the actor." But La Follette had then made his resolve and kept to it. "If you will not act," urged Barrett, "you must interpret for actors. I want you to write for me an interpretation of Hamlet such as you have made of Iago; take a year to do it." To this La Follette agreed. But La Follette is not a careless student. At the end of the year he wrote Barrett that the task was too great. He must have five years.

"Take the five years, but do it," was Barrett's reply. La Follette was governor of Wisconsin before he felt he had fulfilled the commission which Mr. Barrett had assigned to him, and Barrett was then dead. Twenty years of consistent study had gone to his Hamlet thesis. "The Greatest Tragedy of the World."

The First Law Firm

The university of Wisconsin was one of the pioneers in coeducation. In La Follette's class of 1879 there was a brilliant and attractive young woman from the Boo, a colloquial abbreviation for the enterprising little town of Baraboo. Belle Case was ambitious and full of dynamic energy. She was attracted to oratory and interested in theories of government and law. The college had at that time an honor that was known as the Lewis prize, which was awarded to the best commencement oration. Only those who stood high in their classes were eligible to compete. Bob was not eligible, but Belle was. Here began the team work. Bob coached Belle and Belle won. They studied law together and the first shingle was La Follette & La Follette. The shingle was not long thus, but the firm has always given genuine service to the state and nation through the offices of representative, governor and senator.

Robert La Follette had not been long engaged in the practice of law in Madison when he found that the district attorney's office was not only inefficient but as crooked as a snake's tail. The county was infested with porch climbers and thieves, and "jury firing" was an open practice. For years the county boss had been the state boss, a powerful man in the republican party organization. He was a man to be reckoned with in his party's national councils. Colonel E. W. Keyes was a very estimable gentleman of the old machine political school, a kindly, friendly townsman and neighbor, but without imagination and utterly without any sense of political ethics.

Little Bob confronted Colonel Keyes on the postoffice steps one day with the startling declaration that he was going to be the next district attorney.

"Who said you were?" asked the boss.

"I did," was La Follette's emphatic reply.

The boss laughed and walked away. He had his district attorney selected. While he chuckled La Follette held firm to his faith. To reach the people, that is democratic government, La Follette had a horse. He rode to "every Middlesex village and farm." He told the county's story to the farmers. When Keyes and his lieutenants went to their caucus, they found the "embattled farmers" there. Keyes's chuckle was gone. La Follette became district attorney, and one of the great stories of the Wisconsin bar is that of the capture and conviction of two young desperadoes who had looted the county for years and eluded the best efforts of the law. When finally placed behind jail bars on a justly long sentence, they asked to have their compliments and congratulations carried to "that damned smart young district attorney."

His Greatest Battle

La Follette's enemies have been made by his measures, not by his manners. Colonel Keyes, his political enemy throughout his whole political career, speaks of the senator only in terms of admiration. "I've always liked him, and I always told Bob so. He has always fought me, and the little cuss has always beat me. I tell him sometimes he ought not to work so hard, he'll ruin his health, and then Bob will hold out his strong right arm and tell me to feel it, and it's always like iron. I tell Bob we ought not to fight this way. I've always been looking for bright young men to make county attorneys, state senators and governors. I've been building up men who ought to make congressmen and senators, but Bob would never work with me; he has always fought me, and, confound him, he has always won. But I like him."

This is La Follette with his enemies at home who know him. They are political and not personal enemies. The difference between Keyes and La Follette is that Keyes wants La Follette to go to the ballot box with his approval. The one believes in delegated government and the other in popular government.

An indomitable will, an intense concentration, and a complete personal courage have made La Follette the leader of a principle rather than of a party in Wisconsin. It is now nearly a score of years since La Follette was credited with having split the republican party of his state in twain. The state treasurer had long been the best plum on Wisconsin's political tree. Every state treasurer had loaned the state funds to favored banks and had then pocketed the interest that accrued from these loans. La Follette was forcing the old state treasurers to return to the state the interest that belonged to it. United States Senator Sawyer, whose name bespoke his business, came with some diffidence to La Follette and told him that he could not let these cases go on—it meant too much to him. He told La Follette that he must stop them, and with that declaration he tried to thrust upon La Follette a fat roll of bills, which he later described to the editor of the Milwaukee Sentinel as a proffered bribe. When the whole story came before this great and patriotic editor of the "Sentinel" (and there are none such there now), the story of the intrigue to corrupt courts, steal the judgments that belonged to the people, the editor—sad and dejected, facing the injury to personal friends—said: "The story of this awful thing will break the republican party in Wisconsin in half for fifty years. But the people must know the story, and the 'Sentinel' will print the truth." And it did—nearly twenty years ago.

La Follette faced almost sure political damnation. It was his own choice. He preferred it to the alternative, which meant to corrupt himself and to attempt to suborn a judge of the bench of his own state. It is less than twenty years since La Follette fought this, his greatest battle. It was not a spotlight contest. It was fought in the stillness of his own conscience. La Follette won. There was not enough corrupt money in the state to beat the people when aroused. There is still a minority in the republican party—Sawyer disciples—who call themselves sawtooths, but the best surprise is that the huge corruption fund that is being brought into Wisconsin to defeat La Follette now can no more defeat him or the people who are for him than could Sawyer's money twenty years ago.

Can't Beat Him at the Polls

A diverting feature of the present campaign in Wisconsin is that the so-called stalwart managers only admit that their huge campaign fund is to be spent in an effort to rob the people of their rights and to corrupt the state. They admit that nothing can defeat La Follette at the primary polls—that the people of the state are overwhelmingly for La Follette. Knowing this, they are devoting all their money and energy to the task of electing a legislature that will deliberately defy the overwhelming choice of the people as expressed officially by the people themselves. Could they succeed in this game, they would defeat La Follette only for the term of one legislature.

When, nearly twenty years ago, La Follette was a representative in congress, he undertook to oppose an unjust bill of privilege that was to benefit the Chicago and North-western and the St. Paul railroads. A congressman from a neighboring state interrupted his remarks upon the bill by nudging him and whispering: "Bob, you can't oppose this—these are your home corporations," and, laying the fingers of one hand across the fingers of the other, he added: "they criss-cross your district." That congressman was Knute Nelson, now senator and chairman of the Ballinger investigating committee. But La Follette did oppose the bill. When he became governor, he made the railroads, his home corporations, pay their just taxes to the state just as the small town merchant or house owner must do.

Educating the People

In 1906, when the Hepburn rate bill was before the senate, La Follette felt that the president had not gone far enough in his recommendations—that the president's bill was a good bill for possibly five years. When urged by well-meaning and considerate friends, on the ground of political expediency, not to go beyond the president's demands, he replied: "I want to do my part to make a bill that my boys can be proud of." He offered nineteen amendments upon equitable railway valuation, and, while none of these went through, he educated the people of the nation as he had those of his state on the justice of railroad valuation and taxation.

It is not easy to campaign against this work for "God's patient poor." A venerable lawyer at Hudson, Wisconsin, a one-time partner of Senator Spooner, recently complained that you could not get the people away from La Follette. "Now, there is Elmer Halverson," he said; "Elmer is a good man. He is a good Norwegian man. I told him La Follette was no good. He said he did not believe it. I told him something that La Follette had done that was wrong. He said he didn't believe it, that he didn't think La Follette would do such a thing. I proved it; and when I proved it to him, he rubbed his head and just said: 'I do no, but if La Follette did do it, it must be right; dot's all.'"

In Madison that prints its humor in the editorial columns. Its editorial opposition to La Follette is one of the funny things in the state. Goaded by the Milwaukee "Journal" for several weeks, to show some reason for its opposition, it at last came forward with a double-column editorial, in which it eulogized Lincoln as the foundation of the republican party. It did not, however, remind its readers that Lincoln used the republican party to emancipate men rather than to enrich a group of men. Nor did it recall the fact that the heroes of the stalwart faction voted the entire Wisconsin delegation against Lincoln in the Chicago convention of 1860—a vote that ever since Wisconsin republicans have been trying to forget. It did recite a long list of more or less colorless politicians and officeholders—a party roll-call—concluding with the name of a distinguished parliamentary debater, John C. Spooner, and insisting that Robert M. La Follette be retired from public life because his going to the senate had so bewildered Senator Spooner that Senator Spooner had resigned.

From his farm-home porch, La Follette looks across the playful waters of Lake Mendota to the campus that now supports at least twenty great buildings that were unknown to him when he ran the "University Farmer." Here he finds his rest in playing with his children, in hardening up his muscles by plowing corn and pitching hay. He looks young and acts young; yet many are dead and eulogized after they have performed half his labors.

Wisconsin's Debt to La Follette

The people of Wisconsin owe it to themselves to elect a legislature that will return Robert M. La Follette to the United States senate. They owe it to the nation to stand by the man who, while governor, not only secured the redemption to the state of more than a million dollars that had been taken by former state treasurers as interest on the people's money, but who as well brought into the state treasury millions of dollars through a just taxation on railroad properties. It was this governor who exposed the false books and false returns the railroads had made to defraud the state. By this exposure he recovered to the state nearly a million dollars. The work of his railroad commission is now saving the people of Wisconsin more than two million dollars a year. He forced the railroads to treat the small shipper and the big shipper alike. Soon after he entered the United States senate he checked an annual steal by the railroads of seven million dollars, made through unlawful rates and fraudulent contracts. McCullough served well his country when he said to the ambitious youth: "Play not Iago."

MONTREAL AND QUEBEC

A veritable edition de luxe among railroad pamphlets has been issued by the Grand Trunk Railway System to proclaim amongst tourists the glories of the cities of Montreal and Quebec. The brochure is beautifully printed and generally arranged in the artistic style of earlier days, when the ornamentation of a volume was regarded as an important incident to its representation or reading matter. It gives an interesting description of the two most interesting cities in Canada, with many illustrations from photographs. Sent free to any address. Apply to H. G. BREAKS A TARGET SHOOTING RECORD

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—J. R. Graham of Long Lake, Ill., broke the world's amateur target record on Thursday when he went out with 417 straight at the final day's shoot of the grand Chicago handicap tournament at the grounds of the Chicago Gun club. Graham really broke 432 targets without a miss, but fifteen of these are eliminated because they did not come on the program. He got nine unfinished on Monday in practice, and he broke six Thursday morning in tuning up for the contest. The former amateur mark was 366, held by Daniel O'Connell of San Antonio, Texas.

Mr. Graham is well known to the La Crosse Gun club members, having shot here in a number of their tournaments. He was present and competed in the tournament held at the North side about three weeks ago.
